humans have engaged in artistic and aesthetic activities since the appearance of our species our ancestors have decorated their bodies tools and utensils for over 100 000 years the expression of meaning using color line sound rhythm or movement among other means constitutes a fundamental aspect of our species biological and cultural heritage art and aesthetics therefore contribute to our species identity and distinguish it from its living and extinct relatives science is faced with the challenge of explaining the natural foundations of such a unique trait and the way cultural processes nurture it into magnificent expressions historically and ethnically unique how do the human mind and brain bring about these sorts of behaviors what psychological and neural processes underlie the appreciation of painting music and dance how does training modulate these processes are humans

the only species capable of aesthetic appreciation or are other species endowed with the rudiments of this capacity empirical examinations of such questions have a long and rich history in the discipline of psychology the genesis of which can be traced back to the publication of gustav theodor fechner s vorschule der aesthetik in 1876 making it the second oldest branch in experimental psychology the oxford handbook of empirical aesthetics brings together leading experts in psychology neuroimaging art history and philosophy to answer these questions it provides the most comprehensive coverage of the domain of empirical aesthetics to date with sections on visual art dance music and many other art forms and aesthetic phenomena the breadth of this volume s scope reflects the richness and variety of topics and methods currently used today by scientists to understand the way our mind and brain endow us with the faculty to produce and appreciate art and aesthetics didacticism romanticism and classicism are the possible schemata for the knotting of art and philosophy the third term in this knot being the education of subjects youth in particular what characterizes the century that has just come to a close is that while it underwent the saturation of these three schemata it failed to introduce a new one today this predicament tends to produce a kind of unknotting of terms a desperate dis relation between art and philosophy together with the pure and simple collapse of what circulated between them the theme of education whence the thesis of which this book is nothing but a series of variations faced with such a situation of saturation and closure we must attempt to propose a new schema a fourth type of knot between philosophy and art among these inaesthetic variations the reader will encounter a sustained debate with contemporary philosophical uses of the poem bold articulations of the specificity and prospects of theater cinema and dance along with subtle and provocative readings of fernando pessoa stéphane mallarmé and samuel beckett art has not always had the same salience in philosophical discussions of ethics that many other elements of our lives have there are well defined areas of applied ethics corresponding to nature business health care war punishment animals and more but there is no recognized research program in applied ethics of the arts or art ethics art often seems to belong to its own sphere of value separate from morality the first questions we ask about art are usually not about its moral rightness or virtue but about its beauty or originality however it is impossible to do any serious thinking about the arts without engaging in ethical questions
